

Site Surveys

Site Surveys Site surveys are an important tool for documenting damages to an individual, vehicle or building. It can bring the jury to the scene of an accident, which would be impossible to visit under normal circumstances. A site survey can capture structural damage within a home, an injury on the factory floor, or an accident on a highway. A site survey is a permanent video record used in:

- Property Damage Claims
- Personal Injury Suits
- Workers Comp
- Settlement Brochures
- Contract Compliance

In combination with Expert Testimony, the site video can often lay the foundation of a case. In addition, Pre- and Post-Construction Video Surveys offer contractors a visual record that can be maintained in case of future litigation and to meet government contract requirements.
